

<Marine Organism Rearing Log>

9 AM, June 26, 2023

Weather: Cloudy

Water temperature: 18.5°C

Last week, one flounder was found dead in a regular seawater tank with the lower part of its gill gouged out. Upon observation of the wound, it was thought not to be a bite mark from another flounder, but from an accidental contact through a gap in the cover with the propeller that circulates the water in the tank.

